THE DRIVER PAY CHECKUP

Know what the offer is really worth.

A practical workbook for company drivers comparing pay, miles, home time and carrier fit.

INSIDE THIS FREE GUIDE

Pay worksheet | Offer comparison | Red flags

Carrier verification | Recruiter questions

Educational example. Earnings depend on actual miles, rate, deductions and availability.

STEP 1

Run your 60-second pay checkup

Use real numbers from recent settlements or pay statements. Promised miles are not the same as paid miles.

| INPUT                     | YOUR NUMBER          | WHY IT MATTERS                |
|---------------------------|----------------------|-------------------------------|
| Pay rate per mile         | <input type="text"/> | Base rate before bonuses      |
| Average paid miles / week | <input type="text"/> | Use a 4-week average          |
| Average weekly bonuses    | <input type="text"/> | Safety, performance, stop pay |
| Weekly deductions         | <input type="text"/> | Insurance, equipment or other |
| Days away from home       | <input type="text"/> | Count the true time cost      |

|                               |                                   |
|-------------------------------|-----------------------------------|
| ESTIMATED WEEKLY GROSS | (rate x paid miles) + bonuses     |
| ESTIMATED TAKE-HOME    | weekly gross - taxes - deductions |

Quick reality check

- ☐ Are all dispatched miles paid, including empty miles?
- ☐ Are detention, layover, stops and breakdowns compensated?
- ☐ Is the weekly figure guaranteed or only an estimate?
- ☐ How often did current drivers actually reach the advertised miles?

STEP 2

Compare the whole offer

A higher CPM can lose to steadier miles, fewer unpaid days and better home time. Score both offers using the same evidence.

| COMPARISON                     | OFFER A | OFFER B |
|--------------------------------|---------|---------|
| Advertised CPM                 |         |         |
| Real paid miles / week         |         |         |
| Guaranteed minimum             |         |         |
| Detention / layover / stop pay |         |         |
| Typical home time              |         |         |
| Truck age / maintenance        |         |         |
| Benefits start date            |         |         |
| Deductions                     |         |         |
| Sign-on bonus conditions       |         |         |
| Estimated weekly gross         |         |         |
| My fit score (1-10)            |         |         |

Do not decide from a screenshot

Ask the recruiter to put the rate, home-time policy, bonus requirements and expected deductions in writing. Keep a copy of every document you sign.

STEP 3

Spot the red flags before you sign

One warning may have an innocent explanation. Several warnings together mean you should slow down and verify independently.

|   |                                                                                                                 |
|---|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 1 | Upfront moneyYou are asked to pay a recruiter, send gift cards or use crypto before onboarding.      |
| 2 | PressureYou must decide immediately or are discouraged from reading the agreement.                   |
| 3 | Vague payThe company advertises a weekly total but will not explain miles, rate and deductions.      |
| 4 | Identity mismatchThe recruiter email, phone number or payment instructions do not match the carrier. |
| 5 | Missing paperworkYou cannot get the employment terms, lease terms or deductions in writing.          |
| 6 | Unsafe expectationsYou are pushed to violate hours-of-service rules or drive unsafe equipment.       |

Verify a carrier in three steps

- 1 Ask for the legal company name, USDOT number and terminal location.
- 2 Search the USDOT number in the official FMCSA SAFER Company Snapshot.
- 3 Confirm the status, phone and address. Call a published company number if anything differs.

STEP 4

Ask the recruiter better questions

A trustworthy recruiter should be able to answer clearly, explain tradeoffs and tell you when something is not guaranteed.

|                                                                          |                                                                          |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 01What did the median driver earn during the last four weeks? | 02How many paid miles did that driver average?                |
| 03What miles are unpaid, if any?                              | 04How are detention, layover, breakdown and extra stops paid? |
| 05What are every one of my deductions?                        | 06What is the exact home-time policy for my ZIP code?         |
| 07Who pays for transportation, lodging and orientation?       | 08Can I speak with a current driver on a similar route?       |
